

For our development department at the Hanau site, we are looking for a:

Employee (m/f/d) in the field of standards and approvals

YOUR TASKS

- Accompanying approval procedures for products in structural fire protection
- Monitoring of production facilities
- Evaluation of standards, guidelines and approval regulations and their amendments
- Derivation of standards, directives and approval regulations of developmental requirements
- Analysis and testing of new standards, directives, approval regulations and their effects

YOUR PROFILE

- Completed commercial or technical training
- Initial professional experience in the field of approvals, e.g. as a standards officer (m/f/d), specialist (m/f/d) for standards and approvals, administrator (m/f/d) for standards and approvals, assessor (m/f/d) for standards and approvals, technical advisor (m/f/d) for approval procedures would be an advantage
- Experience in quality assurance and/or quality management
- Good communication skills
- Computer skills (MS Office package)
- Independent, responsible and systematic way of working

YOUR WIN

- An interesting professional perspective in an exciting environment
- Extensive induction is supported by training and the opportunity to be creative
- State-of-the-art work and communication tools

Are you looking for success in a qualified homogeneous team and are you looking forward to changing challenges in dealing with state-of-the-art technologies for fire protection solutions?

Then start with us now - we are looking forward to you!

Priorit AG Hanau develops and manufactures high-quality preventive fire protection solutions for new and existing buildings.

Competent employees have been supporting building owners, architects, specialist planners and fabricators as partners in structural fire protection for more than 20 years. The service includes advice, site inspections, installation of individual customer solutions and other useful services.